Military recruitment on campuses. He said is one of the most recent laws governing must also follow guidelines set by the No although colleges and universities are governed by the Solomon Amendment, they though it will not affect the ROTC program because it thinks military discrimination does not comply with school regulations that require and suggested some changes to the ad- The AAUP wants to limit the presence of military recruiters on college campuses because it thinks military discrimination of some schools limited military recruitment on campuses, Bode said. He said about 10 percent of the military's recruiting efforts during the year in Kirksville are obtained from Truman recruiting. He said that without counting information to recruiters. Previously, some schools limited military recruitment on campuses. Bode said, "I think if you're an honest recruiter, I don't think that you're going to have a career in the military after college. Bode said the military also probably would rely more heavily on referrals from civic organizations and cities such as Kansas City and St. Louis. Bode said that if the brief passes, it probably will not significantly affect the number of new recruits each year. If the brief should affect recruitment in large cities such as Kansas City and St. Louis, the DoD would rely more heavily on referrals from the university. Bode said it is an honest recruiter, I don’t think that you're going to have a career in the military after college. Bode said, "If the people would come to you. Jamie Trabac Pohn, who is involved in ROTC, said he was concerned about advice to a member of ROTC sign continuing to be the upper level classes, are preparing the members to be an officer in the military. In a way, [all ROTC members] are encouraged to recruit, like how Greek organizations [recruit]." Bode said. Here is that any difference in experiences, but it's basically the same.

Pending brief could restrict military recruitment

It is possible for students to register without having to go to a faculty member’s office and get a slip of paper called ‘[Registration Access Code] and have a false discussion about how things are going, when all they want is to figure out his Registration Access Code so they can get things done,” Gery said. Senior Brian Wolk, who was not at the Student Senate, and the Center for Student Affairs, said he would be happy to make sure that doesn’t happen. Wolk said he did not mind going to his adviser to get his registration code but he thinks students should be able to complete more processes online.

Teaching and Learning hosted a forum to examine the views of students, staff and faculty on how academic advising can improve. Student Senate and the Center for Advising and Recognition hosted a forum to examine the views of students, staff and faculty on how academic advising can improve. "This semester in a research seminar, and [those semest] could be discussed anonymously,” Crawford said. "But if it is possible for students to register without having to go to a faculty member’s office and get a slip of paper called the Registration Access Code, they can have a false discussion about how things are going, when all they want is to figure out their Registration Access Code so they can get things done,” Gery said.

Jon Gering, assistant professor of biology and student advisor, spoke during the Advising Dinner event in the SUB rooftop. He said this act will not affect the ROTC program because it thinks military discrimination does not comply with school regulations that require students to release student information to recruiters. Previously, some schools limited military recruitment on campuses, Bode said. He said about 10 percent of the military's recruiting efforts during the year in Kirksville are obtained from Truman recruiting. He said that without counting information to recruiters. Previously, some schools limited military recruitment on campuses. Bode said, "I think if you're an honest recruiter, I don’t think that you're going to have a career in the military after college. Bode said the military also probably would rely more heavily on referrals from civic organizations and cities such as Kansas City and St. Louis. Bode said that if the brief passes, it probably will not significantly affect the number of new recruits each year. If the brief should affect recruitment in large cities such as Kansas City and St. Louis, the DoD would rely more heavily on referrals from the university. Bode said it is an honest recruiter, I don’t think that you're going to have a career in the military after college. Bode said, "If the people would come to you. Jamie Trabac Pohn, who is involved in ROTC, said he was concerned about advice to a member of ROTC sign continuing to be the upper level classes, are preparing the members to be an officer in the military. In a way, [all ROTC members] are encouraged to recruit, like how Greek organizations [recruit]." Bode said. Here is that any difference in experiences, but it's basically the same.

Free Checking... it’s a deal!

A Free Checking account from Bank Midwest includes:

- Free Checking
- Free Internet Banking
- Free Online Bill Payment
- Free Auto Deposit
- Free Debit Card
- No Minimum Balance
- Unlimited Check Writing
- No Maintenance Fees
- No ATM fees
- No Overdraft Charges
- 24 Hour Account Information
- Free ATM Network

To open a Bank Midwest Free Checking account, visit the banking center nearest you, or visit us online at bankmidwest.com.

PONDEROSA STEAKHOUSE

Sunday Night College Buffet $6.99 includes beverage 4 p.m. to close
Monday Night Wing Night 50 chicken wings to go. Choice of: on-grid, original or BBQ. $9.99

"Where the extras don’t cost extra!"

Open Sunday to Thursday 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Checks, Visa, Mastercard, Discover and American Express accepted.