Amanda Boyle

Amanda Boyle of the University of Pennsylvania led the study. The report was commissioned by the Department of Public Safety at the university. The study found that some students may be using alcohol on campus, with some violations occurring in fraternity houses. The report also found that the increase in alcohol-related disciplinary referrals is not necessarily as significant as it might appear at first glance. Dr. Tim Johnson, director of the University Police, said he understands the concern but is not surprised by the increase in referrals. He said the university is working to address the problem and is confident that it will be able to respond effectively.
