Resident returns Troy Mills

Troy Mills native Bob Lamburt tries to put town back on the map.

“Troy Mills is beautiful and the residents are working hard to turn it into a major tourist area,” said Lamburt. “I think people are going to be amazed when they see what we’re doing.”

Lamburt said he felt it was his destiny to return to his hometown, which closed in 1868. He said he had always wanted to help his hometown and that he had been working on the project for over a year.

"No one is going to pick up a project and say, "Ok, there's a town in Missouri called Troy Mills," Lamburt said. "But when people talk about putting Troy Mills back on the map, they're talking about a business project."
