Hall will up cost of living

Students John Saturni can’t wait to come home after a long day at school to a warm, soft, comfy place to bunk down in the bed room instead of a noisy dorm suite. Students said they hope to be able to keep the dorm suite they have this year when they return. The residence hall, which students had the chance to pick for complete August in their dorm, will not change when they return.

Money said another issue for the students is the increased cost of living. “There is more square footage in the new dorm than in the old dorm. Each suite in the new dorm will have double the space of their old dorm. They also have a living room, cost effective small wash area, and more.

Money said: "I think the most important thing is the ability to have a place of your own and it’s not as much pressure. Also, you have more space in the dorm.

"I thought about it, but it’s hard to find rooms, and it’s too expensive. Right now my scholarship covers everything perfectly. If I move there, I’ll have to pay more."

George Wang said: "It’s a living situation that we don’t have now. It’s a lot better than the dorm.

"I’m very glad to have private spaces, so they do have build community and make the experiencier. Upstairs rooms, on the other hand, are like having your own house but have to share it with four other people.

"Because of my roommates’ preferences, they have bought a lot of stuff that I never want to have to use."

"I’m on scholarship, so my company will be willing to pay the student to move in on campus in a year," said Sujit Chemburkar, said he hopes to have his son pay the student to live in the residence hall.
