Visit day results in long-term roommate relationship

Sadie Scott-Henbach

Making new roommates this fall: Kristen Clements and Suzanne Williams found more than their freshman college roommate when they visited Truman— they found friendship.

“...I then went online and posted a thing to meet any new people who might be here and maybe put together a little group,” Scott-Henbach said.

Williams is a student at Truman and Clements is a student at Missouri State University. Scott-Henbach is a member of the junior class. Scott-Henbach said she thought this was a good way to meet new people and maybe find someone to hang out with. Williams is a member of the senior class. Williams said this was a good way to make new friends because it is a little bit less awkward than having just met someone.
