Local park repairs damage suffered from water erosion

Reflections 2000

Hair • Nails • Tanning

Doria • Jackie • Lyndsay
Charelle • Debbie • Amber

304 S. Franklin Street
Suite 500
Kirkville, Mo. 63501

(660) 665-7475

Library lives despite cuts

Amanda Bock
Staff Reporter

Glenda Dorin-Hunt, Adair County Library Director, knows the library needs to be proactive in order to stop the erosion of Forest Lake. "I think of the library as the little beast that people might not think about," she said. "If the library had to close, I think it would be one of those things that aren't missed as much as the lake was."

Forest Lake is a source of recreation and wildlife. It's important to the community because it's also a source of drinking water. Steacy said that after the forest erosion project was finished, Steacy said he estimated that the forest erosion project would save the library about $10,000.

Buckwalter said it also did more as a result of the fundraising project, Adair to State Park. "We got a lot of money to help the library," he said. "The library is not going anywhere."

The Adair County Library is funded primarily by a levy to property taxes throughout the state, by the county, and through grants and contributions. The library receives about $30,000 per year from the Missouri Department of Natural Resources through the local park repairs program. If the levy does not pass, the library will have to cut its operating hours.

The library is located in the state. It is funded primarily by a levy to property taxes throughout the state. It is also funded by the county and through grants and contributions. The library receives about $30,000 per year from the Missouri Department of Natural Resources through the local park repairs program. If the levy does not pass, the library will have to cut its operating hours.

The Adair County Library is funded primarily by a levy to property taxes throughout the state, by the county, and through grants and contributions. The library receives about $30,000 per year from the Missouri Department of Natural Resources through the local park repairs program. If the levy does not pass, the library will have to cut its operating hours.

The library is located in the state. It is funded primarily by a levy to property taxes throughout the state. It is also funded by the county and through grants and contributions. The library receives about $30,000 per year from the Missouri Department of Natural Resources through the local park repairs program. If the levy does not pass, the library will have to cut its operating hours.

The Adair County Library is funded primarily by a levy to property taxes throughout the state, by the county, and through grants and contributions. The library receives about $30,000 per year from the Missouri Department of Natural Resources through the local park repairs program. If the levy does not pass, the library will have to cut its operating hours.

The library is located in the state. It is funded primarily by a levy to property taxes throughout the state. It is also funded by the county and through grants and contributions. The library receives about $30,000 per year from the Missouri Department of Natural Resources through the local park repairs program. If the levy does not pass, the library will have to cut its operating hours.