Identical twin studies and identity

Three students recount reasons they are thankful

Maggie Weberott
Staff Reporter

As many people look forward to Thanksgiving dinner, some students reflect on what they are thankful for. Three students shared their stories of Thanksgiving, from the traditional turkey to a unique idea for the festive meal.

Alicia Collins
Junior

“I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.

Griffard said she was thankful for the Thanksgiving holiday because she was able to spend the holiday with her family. “I think it's in the air, the way people are acting, the way they are thinking about others. It's definitely a time of unity for everyone,” Collins said. She celebrated Thanksgiving with her family at her parent’s house in Columbia. Collins said she always likes to make the meal and table setting herself, and she is thankful for this year’s turkey.