Plans include accessibility

New campus renovations will be easier to use for students with disabilities

By Kyle Hill

Student Senate prepares to ask state for more funding

Robert Martin, a member of Missouri State University’s Board of Governors, said the resolution was not on the agenda for their meeting Tuesday.

Kevin Wehner, coordinator of disability services, said Truman is endeavoring to be accessible to disabled students. He said some classrooms on campus are accessible for students with disabilities.

Wehner said new buildings on campus are disabled-accessible with the proper doors and elevators, but not all are convenient for students with disabilities.

Wehner and some residence halls are inaccessible for students in wheelchairs. She said many residence halls were built in the 1980s when accessibility was not an issue.

Student Senate unanimously approved a resolution Tuesday asking the Missouri General Assembly to improve funding to all state universities.

Senators approved the resolution unanimously.

Supervisor Mirandy Manners, everyone’s eyes, said they who proposed the resolution said it was excited to see the resolution pass.

Student Senate was re-}

Student Senate unanimously approved a resolution Tuesday asking the Missouri General Assembly to improve funding to all state universities.

Senators approved the resolution unanimously.

Supervisor Mirandy Manners, everyone’s eyes, said they who proposed the resolution said it was excited to see the resolution pass.

Student Senate was re-