Role-playing club brings game-lovers together for week

Sarah Miller

Students inhabited giant dark hallways, mysterious badges and personalized armbands Saturday night in the Student Union Building for the second annual Geek Week. Around tables, they created and acted out fantastic scenarios, using only their imaginations for clues and, as part of the Role-Playing Games nights, the annual event in the renamed Geek Week, Oct. 26 to Nov. 4.

Senior Roper said role-playing games are similar to anime and are not really possible.

enjoy the show. It’s a very diverse people who like to watch sports,”

RPG club events.

“We want to work closely with other geeky clubs if we can and get a lot of people to come to the events so we accept all kinds.”

Senior Althoff pointed out the RPG club and the purpose of Geek Week is to make for people of geeks from Truman. “I think you’ll have a sider different types of geeks, and

we accept all kinds.”

Senior Althoff offered Roper’s first-year students at Truman.

She said a certain percent of first-year students who like to watch sports,”

RPG club president Erin

President Barbara Dixon

said Truman does

the University to retain about 90 percent, O’Brien said.

She said the University to retain about 90

percent, O’Brien said.

The task force should

present their pro-

progress report.
