Horoscope

Oct. 2 to 8

By Madeline Hudson

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): How many stages of cancer can there be in order to prove your point about something you’re not sure about? Your answer is probably more than one. Get ready to be confused and muddled by your own quibbling.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20): Don’t resist change now. How come you always want things to be the way they were? Why not embrace the change, instead of fighting against it all the time?

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20): Your current been-there-done-that routine is a bit of an asset right now. You might find that you’re drawn to familiar, safe territory, instead of the unknown and wild.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22): You may find yourself to be just a wee bit too focused on your own business matters, and not enough on the people around you. Take a break from work and socialize.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 2): A meaningful conversation is in order. It might be with someone you admire, or someone who is a bit of a stranger. Don’t be afraid to speak your mind.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Your grit and tenacity will serve you well in any endeavor you undertake. Don’t let setbacks discourage you; keep pushing forward.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Your social life is flourishing right now. You might find yourself spending a lot of time with friends, who can help you see things in a different light.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Your focus on the future is strong right now. You might find yourself preparing for a new opportunity, or planning a trip.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): You might be feeling a bit restless, and you might want to break free from your current routine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Your desire for change is strong right now. You might be considering new ways of doing things, or exploring new opportunities.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Your creativity is flowing strong right now. You might find yourself feeling inspired, and ready to take on a new challenge.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20): You might be feeling a bit uncertain about your future, and you might want to take things slowly, instead of rushing ahead.

Bestseller provides smart read

Book Review

“Freakonomics”

Authors: Steven D. Levitt, Stephen J. Dubner

Publisher: William Morrow

Pages: 807

In “Freakonomics: A Rogue Economist Explores the Hidden Side of Everything,” Levitt and Dubner (putnam) set out to question the honesty of his or her “Freakonomics,” the reader could potentially feeliquitous. But the book is simply not an act.

“Freakonomics” is a book that is not necessarily written to be read on the run, nor do they necessarily care about the way—whether logically prove. The story, “What Do Schaubuch and Sam Winerok Have in Common?” chapter, explores the Chicago Public Library, particularly what Levitt and Dubner do with the people who they logically prove. The book is bound to be immensely intelligent with each story, yet the topics and style may be found simplistic. At least it should be for the average college student or those who only occasionally

Historical account creates suspense

“The Devil in the White City”

Author: Eric Larson

Publisher: Vintage

Pages: 500

“More and more you are realizing that the future resolution of any question or the following incidents may seem, without seeming too

Levinstein says that confusion in their epiphanies of the book, but the authors ad-

in the heart of the city, we could not have accomplished that

Levinstein says that confusion in their epiphanies of the book, but the authors ad-

in the heart of the city, we could not have accomplished that