Dr. Lloyd Cleaver’s is currently recruiting people with moderate to severe acne to participate in a research study. This study will evaluate a new investigational generic gel to be approved prescription gel and placebo.

Senior portfolio – requires graduating seniors to submit one piece of work in six categories, as well as a cover letter and permission of ideas.

Critical thinking – a work integrating analysis, synthesis and evaluation of ideas.

Interdisciplinary thinking – a work that encompasses the methodologies of multiple disciplines.

Historical analysis – a work analyzing connections between events, and reveals the relevance of historical context.

Scientific reasoning – a work analyzing an ability to reason scientifically, such as a laboratory or research report.

Aesthetic analysis – a work analyzing a creative work, including visual, performing, or written arts.

Most satisfying work or experience – includes class, extracurricular work, or objects of symbolic value.

Cover letter – a record of the time and thoughts put into the creation of the portfolio.

Folio permission – Allows the student to use the portfolio in the future to train new portfolio readers.

University assessment tools

Graduating Student Questionnaire – taken by all graduating seniors, with questions based on student satisfaction, campus involvement, and time spent on activities inside and outside the classroom.

Junior testing – students who have 75 credit hours take either the CAAP test, which is focused on critical thinking, or the MAP, which tests natural and social sciences, mathematics, reading, writing, and critical thinking.

Loan exit counseling – Federal Perkins Loan and Nursing Loan borrowers are required to attend an exit interview before graduation. This has been done through the Students Accounts Office.

Senior capstone – taken during the senior year of the student’s major. It is designed to demonstrate point-of-view comprehensiveness, positive self-worth, attitudes toward the major and the university, as well as ethical and social responsibility.

Senior testing – all seniors take a test chosen by faculty. The test, either the Collegiate Learning Assessment or a major-specific exam, measures general knowledge in the senior’s major.
