Non-profit organization stops in Kirkville

Invisible Children, an organization that helps spread awareness of the 22-year-long war in Uganda that is using grade school-age children, made a stop in Kirkville as a part of their 2008 tour.

Invisible Children is one of the most well-known organizations that help spread awareness of the 22-year-long war in Uganda that is using grade school-age children. The organization helps spread awareness by taking children on tours to stop the war in Uganda.

The tour consists of five national tours, including one into Africa and one to Uganda. The tour includes various cities across the United States and stops at schools, universities, and other locations to raise awareness of the ongoing conflict in Uganda.

The tour includes various events, such as lectures, workshops, and movie screenings. The events are designed to educate people about the crisis in Uganda and encourage them to take action.

The tour is a way for Invisible Children to raise awareness of the ongoing conflict in Uganda and encourage people to take action. The organization is one of the most well-known organizations that help spread awareness of the war in Uganda, and it is a way for people to support the peace movement.