international recruiting increases

Stronger recruitment strategies boost international numbers

BY PATRICK FELLETTI

Director of admissions

We've seen a lot of things come together in the last few years that have helped us increase our international numbers.

Our top priority is to attract international students to Truman. We've been working hard to increase our international numbers, and we've been very successful.

We've seen a lot of things change since our hip replacement. She used to walk a mile a day. Now she uses a walker. She can't go too far at a time.

She said the University's international recruiting success stories from strong relationships with admissions offices.

The most important thing is to have a relationship building and name recognition.

We have a strong staff that builds up our international student numbers. We work closely with our international student office to help them find their way around campus.

We're constantly trying to improve our international recruiting efforts. We're always looking for new ways to reach and connect with international students.

When we touch many parts of the world, and we need international students to keep growing. We're constantly working to attract and retain international students.

I didn't like the hip replacement at first. I thought it was too big. But now I'm glad I did it. It's really helped me.
