Students are the heart and soul of their community, she said. "We can't do anything without them."