Sushi place will soon open

Those fishing for new restaurants in Kirksville can visit Kimberly Smock’s restaurant in 2008.

Kirksville residents and students soon will have a choice of sushi restaurants. The restaurant is located in what used to be Creations & Cuisine, which was run by Larry Kerby. Kimberly Smock and her sister Tricia opened their restaurant.

“Sushi is really cool,” said Smock. “I don’t want people to think of it as just like most of the fast food restaurants available in Kirksville. But I want people to know it’s affordable for everybody. We’re going to stay competitive with the downtown and on-campus sushi restaurants.”

The restaurant is the second in the city. It is owned by Kimberly Smock and her sister Tricia.

“Sushi is the only thing that my sister and I will do,” said Smock. “We won’t be just like most of the fast food restaurants with close friends and other shi restaurant in Kirksville is still cover the windows, but we won’t be like that. We’re going to have a stylish and very affordable restaurant to campus. Cummings said she is excited about the restaurant because of its proximity to campus. Cummings said the restaurant will feature a different kind of sushi each day.

When it opens, the restaurant only will serve sushi. Smock said she probably will open the restaurant for lunch when students return from summer break.

The restaurant will have a new name when it is functional.

Additional $55 will pay for orientation of summer orientation

BY CATLIN DEAN

Next year’s incoming freshmen will pay an additional $55 to attend summer orientation.

Beginning in summer 2008, the University of Missouri-Kirksville will add an extra $55 to its fee structure to cover the cost of orientation. The fee, which currently is $250, will increase to $305.

“Summer orientation has separate connections, he said. “They’re both about building relationships and procedures beyond the summer orientation day, such as the cost of an orientation session.”

The fee increase will cover expenses associated with hiring orientation leaders, food, entertainment costs, transportation and any other costs associated with orientation leaders. Smock said additional changes might arise at a later point, such as the cost of an optional evening stay on campus for students of color and a handful for parents attending the orientation.

The summer orientation program, designed for transfer students to attend one session of a day-long event in addition to traditional orientation programs, will be offered on several different dates this summer. Students must sign up for the orientation in advance, according to the release.

“The Board of Governors approved an increase in the fee structure for orientation,” said Mollie Bertling, director of Orientation and Student Activities.
