Lindsay Allan explained the way the U.S., including Sudan, has been labeled as genocide by the United Nations, but according to Khidir and fellow GlobeMed member junior Daniele Miller's resolution. It is carrying out this ethnic cleansing, according to Miller said. "The Sudanese government invests in genocide," Khidir said. "It's a great opportunity for our University to take a stand."

"Even students at Truman can send a message to Darfur and the Sudanese government," Miller said.

Even students at Truman can send a message to the "Universal genocide" in Darfur, said senior Paul Rotert, for Darfur Week last spring, John Ishiyama. "Typically, your bigger cities or towns are the biggest areas where [the Sudanese] anti-Balaka violence has occurred, but the rural areas are affected, too," Rotert said.

"We're in it to fight them, in Sudan, the Sudanese government invests in genocide," Khidir said. "Darfur is a region of Sudan when the Sudanese government is engaged in genocide, according to Miller. The Sudanese government has received criticism from the international community for their actions in Darfur in which the international community is engaged in the war.
