Being appropriate to social situations and noticing non-verbal communication is crucial when one wants to be a good conversationalist. A person is datable. Maybe it isn’t so bad. It’s just that if you have a roommate that you don’t get on with, you might not be in a position to do many things in the dorm.

Roommate-hunters need not fear the reappearance of disastrous dates. Just because you might not have made a conscious effort to diversify your potential roommates, that doesn’t mean you can’t! As long as you are aware of the consequences of living with someone that isn’t the one you want to live with, there is a chance that you can make a conscious effort to find that person.

The best way to do this is simply to read up on the diversity of your campus environment and have a good understanding of the differences that exist between others. There are opportunities on campus that are not only diverse but also welcoming. There are opportunities on campus that are not only diverse but also appreciated. In this case, it is fair to say that Truman’s campus is a diverse environment.

Although I believe that Truman has diversity covered, everything is subjective and people do have different opinions on diversity. If you find that there are aspects of campus that you don’t enjoy, it is important to talk to someone who is interested in your situation and have the option of exploring these aspects of your environment.
