Reserved free zone would protect speech

That’s the whole slick,” said Stephanie Hennes, of a small group called the "Youth Against the Iraq War," about the controversy over speeches and and demonstrations on University of Missouri campuses. “I think that the professors would not allow students to speak on campus, and we don’t have a good way of making sure that would happen," she said. "We will still have our innovative or provocative speaking against pressured, which is why we’re committed to our right of free speech’.

As a University community, we are prepared to accept that every free speech event results in a desire to counteract or neutralize the rest of the University and its constituencies. The Free Speech Zone was conceived as a way to channel the free speech of professors and students into a separate space where free speech would be protected. The Free Speech Zone results in a series of free speech zones, where some national voices are heard.

---

Reserved free zone would protect speech

The Index welcomes letters to the editor from the University community. Letters to the Editor are expressed views on current issues and are not intended to represent the opinions of The Index, its staff, or the University of Missouri-Columbia.

Letters to the Editor

Serving the University community since 1909

---

Letters to the Editor

The Index welcomes letters to the editor from the University community. Letters to the Editor are expressed views on current issues and are not intended to represent the opinions of The Index, its staff, or the University of Missouri-Columbia.

---

Reserved free zone would protect speech

That’s the whole slick,” said Stephanie Hennes, of a small group called the "Youth Against the Iraq War," about the controversy over speeches and and demonstrations on University of Missouri campuses. “I think that the professors would not allow students to speak on campus, and we don’t have a good way of making sure that would happen," she said. "We will still have our innovative or provocative speaking against pressured, which is why we’re committed to our right of free speech’.

As a University community, we are prepared to accept that every free speech event results in a desire to counteract or neutralize the rest of the University and its constituencies. The Free Speech Zone was conceived as a way to channel the free speech of professors and students into a separate space where free speech would be protected. The Free Speech Zone results in a series of free speech zones, where some national voices are heard.

---

Reserved free zone would protect speech

The Index welcomes letters to the editor from the University community. Letters to the Editor are expressed views on current issues and are not intended to represent the opinions of The Index, its staff, or the University of Missouri-Columbia.

---

Reserved free zone would protect speech

That’s the whole slick,” said Stephanie Hennes, of a small group called the "Youth Against the Iraq War," about the controversy over speeches and and demonstrations on University of Missouri campuses. “I think that the professors would not allow students to speak on campus, and we don’t have a good way of making sure that would happen," she said. "We will still have our innovative or provocative speaking against pressured, which is why we’re committed to our right of free speech’.

As a University community, we are prepared to accept that every free speech event results in a desire to counteract or neutralize the rest of the University and its constituencies. The Free Speech Zone was conceived as a way to channel the free speech of professors and students into a separate space where free speech would be protected. The Free Speech Zone results in a series of free speech zones, where some national voices are heard.

---

Reserved free zone would protect speech

That’s the whole slick,” said Stephanie Hennes, of a small group called the "Youth Against the Iraq War," about the controversy over speeches and and demonstrations on University of Missouri campuses. “I think that the professors would not allow students to speak on campus, and we don’t have a good way of making sure that would happen," she said. "We will still have our innovative or provocative speaking against pressured, which is why we’re committed to our right of free speech’.

As a University community, we are prepared to accept that every free speech event results in a desire to counteract or neutralize the rest of the University and its constituencies. The Free Speech Zone was conceived as a way to channel the free speech of professors and students into a separate space where free speech would be protected. The Free Speech Zone results in a series of free speech zones, where some national voices are heard.

---

Reserved free zone would protect speech

That’s the whole slick,” said Stephanie Hennes, of a small group called the "Youth Against the Iraq War," about the controversy over speeches and and demonstrations on University of Missouri campuses. “I think that the professors would not allow students to speak on campus, and we don’t have a good way of making sure that would happen," she said. "We will still have our innovative or provocative speaking against pressured, which is why we’re committed to our right of free speech’.

As a University community, we are prepared to accept that every free speech event results in a desire to counteract or neutralize the rest of the University and its constituencies. The Free Speech Zone was conceived as a way to channel the free speech of professors and students into a separate space where free speech would be protected. The Free Speech Zone results in a series of free speech zones, where some national voices are heard.

---

Reserved free zone would protect speech

That’s the whole slick,” said Stephanie Hennes, of a small group called the "Youth Against the Iraq War," about the controversy over speeches and and demonstrations on University of Missouri campuses. “I think that the professors would not allow students to speak on campus, and we don’t have a good way of making sure that would happen," she said. "We will still have our innovative or provocative speaking against pressured, which is why we’re committed to our right of free speech’.

As a University community, we are prepared to accept that every free speech event results in a desire to counteract or neutralize the rest of the University and its constituencies. The Free Speech Zone was conceived as a way to channel the free speech of professors and students into a separate space where free speech would be protected. The Free Speech Zone results in a series of free speech zones, where some national voices are heard.

---

Reserved free zone would protect speech

That’s the whole slick,” said Stephanie Hennes, of a small group called the "Youth Against the Iraq War," about the controversy over speeches and and demonstrations on University of Missouri campuses. “I think that the professors would not allow students to speak on campus, and we don’t have a good way of making sure that would happen," she said. "We will still have our innovative or provocative speaking against pressured, which is why we’re committed to our right of free speech’.

As a University community, we are prepared to accept that every free speech event results in a desire to counteract or neutralize the rest of the University and its constituencies. The Free Speech Zone was conceived as a way to channel the free speech of professors and students into a separate space where free speech would be protected. The Free Speech Zone results in a series of free speech zones, where some national voices are heard.

---

Reserved free zone would protect speech

That’s the whole slick,” said Stephanie Hennes, of a small group called the "Youth Against the Iraq War," about the controversy over speeches and and demonstrations on University of Missouri campuses. “I think that the professors would not allow students to speak on campus, and we don’t have a good way of making sure that would happen," she said. "We will still have our innovative or provocative speaking against pressured, which is why we’re committed to our right of free speech’.

As a University community, we are prepared to accept that every free speech event results in a desire to counteract or neutralize the rest of the University and its constituencies. The Free Speech Zone was conceived as a way to channel the free speech of professors and students into a separate space where free speech would be protected. The Free Speech Zone results in a series of free speech zones, where some national voices are heard.

---

Reserved free zone would protect speech

That’s the whole slick,” said Stephanie Hennes, of a small group called the "Youth Against the Iraq War," about the controversy over speeches and and demonstrations on University of Missouri campuses. “I think that the professors would not allow students to speak on campus, and we don’t have a good way of making sure that would happen," she said. "We will still have our innovative or provocative speaking against pressured, which is why we’re committed to our right of free speech’.

As a University community, we are prepared to accept that every free speech event results in a desire to counteract or neutralize the rest of the University and its constituencies. The Free Speech Zone was conceived as a way to channel the free speech of professors and students into a separate space where free speech would be protected. The Free Speech Zone results in a series of free speech zones, where some national voices are heard.