Student president talks music, comics and faith

BY JACKIE GONZALEZ
Assistant Features Editor

Junior Matt Szewczyk is a scholar, friend and fraternity member. Matt, who grew up in a family named "Zen-chy," is an English and philosophy double major who roughly hails from Independence. Formerly a computer science major, Szewczyk said he那儿 childhood was a major influence in his current intellectual pursuits.

"One of the most influential parts of my college life has been to study the arts," Szewczyk said.

That class influenced him to take another class in religion, which led to a course and eventually a major.

"My Vikings tradition class changed the way I think about the students in the government," Szewczyk said. "Having that class that led to this for me was vital for my learning in the student government.

Musician and Collector

Szewczyk describes himself as a music nut, seeing and listening to the Plain White T's. These nice people played their hit song, and instead of sanely asking for the album, I'm just wondering about the new release.

"I like it in the way The White Stripes set their music," he said.

In addition to being a musician, Szewczyk is a collector of music. He said that he has over 10,000 CDs and albums, which he has collected over the years.

Local physician gives tips on how to combat all types of headaches

Although not all headaches are the same, they do have something in common — they come and go. More than 135 million Americans suffer from headaches. The cause can range from mild to severe, and can be the result of many different factors.

The most common types of headaches are tension headaches, migraines and sinus headaches. These types of headaches are often caused by stress, diet, lack of sleep or hormonal changes.

Headaches can cause injury, disability and even death. It is estimated that about 30 percent of people suffer from migraines at least once a month. The need for a cure is clear, as millions of Americans are affected by this disease.

Get rid of headaches so they aren't a pain in the neck

It’s not that the guitar, but the former music major enjoys playing the guitar, but the former music major enjoys playing the guitar. Instead of being a slave to it, he enjoys playing it. He plays guitar, but he enjoys playing it. He plays guitar, but he enjoys playing it.

"It feels like the student government was defending their territory to me," he said. "I'm really just trying to do the best I can, so I've really enjoyed it so I can't say it was worth my career.

Szewczyk said he has already considered the future in the government and politics.

"I've been looking at law or it's worth fighting for,

Most of the music is about personal experiences.

"I feel that I've made a difference in the lives of people around me.

Now, he is the change.

Szewczyk also provided advice for entering Truman undeclared, he said.

"I was one of the students who did not have a declared major, and I'm still a sophomore. But I've been able to find my major and continue on with my education.

"I'd like to think of it as The Who meets Bright Eyes meets Muse,” he said.

Meet Matt: Introspective Singer

Enter Truman student, he is a student who is not only very active in his campus, but also in the community. Matt, a sophomore, is a student who is not only very active in his campus, but also in the community.

"One of the most influential parts of my college life has been to study the arts," Szewczyk said.

That class influenced him to take another class in religion, which led to a course and eventually a major.

"My Vikings tradition class changed the way I think about the students in the government," Szewczyk said. "Having that class that led to this for me was vital for my learning in the student government.

Musician and Collector

Szewczyk describes himself as a music nut, seeing and listening to the Plain White T's. These nice people played their hit song, and instead of sanely asking for the album, I'm just wondering about the new release.

"I like it in the way The White Stripes set their music," he said.

In addition to being a musician, Szewczyk is a collector of music. He said that he has over 10,000 CDs and albums, which he has collected over the years.

Local physician gives tips on how to combat all types of headaches

Although not all headaches are the same, they do have something in common — they come and go. More than 135 million Americans suffer from headaches. The cause can range from mild to severe, and can be the result of many different factors.

The most common types of headaches are tension headaches, migraines and sinus headaches. These types of headaches are often caused by stress, diet, lack of sleep or hormonal changes.

Headaches can cause injury, disability and even death. It is estimated that about 30 percent of people suffer from migraines at least once a month. The need for a cure is clear, as millions of Americans are affected by this disease.

Get rid of headaches so they aren't a pain in the neck

It’s not that the guitar, but the former music major enjoys playing the guitar, but the former music major enjoys playing the guitar. Instead of being a slave to it, he enjoys playing it. He plays guitar, but he enjoys playing it. He plays guitar, but he enjoys playing it.

"It feels like the student government was defending their territory to me," he said. "I'm really just trying to do the best I can, so I've really enjoyed it so I can't say it was worth my career.

Szewczyk said he has already considered the future in the government and politics.

"I've been looking at law or it's worth fighting for,

Most of the music is about personal experiences.

"I feel that I've made a difference in the lives of people around me.

Now, he is the change.

Szewczyk also provided advice for entering Truman undeclared, he said.

"I was one of the students who did not have a declared major, and I'm still a sophomore. But I've been able to find my major and continue on with my education.

"I'd like to think of it as The Who meets Bright Eyes meets Muse,” he said.

Meet Matt: Introspective Singer

Enter Truman student, he is a student who is not only very active in his campus, but also in the community. Matt, a sophomore, is a student who is not only very active in his campus, but also in the community.

"One of the most influential parts of my college life has been to study the arts," Szewczyk said.

That class influenced him to take another class in religion, which led to a course and eventually a major.

"My Vikings tradition class changed the way I think about the students in the government," Szewczyk said. "Having that class that led to this for me was vital for my learning in the student government.

Musician and Collector

Szewczyk describes himself as a music nut, seeing and listening to the Plain White T's. These nice people played their hit song, and instead of sanely asking for the album, I'm just wondering about the new release.

"I like it in the way The White Stripes set their music," he said.

In addition to being a musician, Szewczyk is a collector of music. He said that he has over 10,000 CDs and albums, which he has collected over the years.

Local physician gives tips on how to combat all types of headaches

Although not all headaches are the same, they do have something in common — they come and go. More than 135 million Americans suffer from headaches. The cause can range from mild to severe, and can be the result of many different factors.

The most common types of headaches are tension headaches, migraines and sinus headaches. These types of headaches are often caused by stress, diet, lack of sleep or hormonal changes.

Headaches can cause injury, disability and even death. It is estimated that about 30 percent of people suffer from migraines at least once a month. The need for a cure is clear, as millions of Americans are affected by this disease.

Get rid of headaches so they aren't a pain in the neck

It’s not that the guitar, but the former music major enjoys playing the guitar, but the former music major enjoys playing the guitar. Instead of being a slave to it, he enjoys playing it. He plays guitar, but he enjoys playing it. He plays guitar, but he enjoys playing it.

"It feels like the student government was defending their territory to me," he said. "I'm really just trying to do the best I can, so I've really enjoyed it so I can't say it was worth my career.

Szewczyk said he has already considered the future in the government and politics.

"I've been looking at law or it's worth fighting for,

Most of the music is about personal experiences.

"I feel that I've made a difference in the lives of people around me.

Now, he is the change.

Szewczyk also provided advice for entering Truman undeclared, he said.

"I was one of the students who did not have a declared major, and I'm still a sophomore. But I've been able to find my major and continue on with my education.

"I'd like to think of it as The Who meets Bright Eyes meets Muse,” he said.

Meet Matt: Introspective Singer

Enter Truman student, he is a student who is not only very active in his campus, but also in the community. Matt, a sophomore, is a student who is not only very active in his campus, but also in the community.

"One of the most influential parts of my college life has been to study the arts," Szewczyk said.

That class influenced him to take another class in religion, which led to a course and eventually a major.

"My Vikings tradition class changed the way I think about the students in the government," Szewczyk said. "Having that class that led to this for me was vital for my learning in the student government.

Musician and Collector

Szewczyk describes himself as a music nut, seeing and listening to the Plain White T's. These nice people played their hit song, and instead of sanely asking for the album, I'm just wondering about the new release.

"I like it in the way The White Stripes set their music," he said.

In addition to being a musician, Szewczyk is a collector of music. He said that he has over 10,000 CDs and albums, which he has collected over the years.