Newman makes progress

Neuman Center lays foundation for both stages of rebuilding

BY LISA HOLMES

Newman Center Director Bettie Werkmeister has been in charge of the Newman Center since 2000. She has been working on the project for the past three years and has been able to bring the project to its current stage. Werkmeister said she is excited about the progress that has been made, and she is looking forward to the next stage of the project.

Despite the progress made, there are still many obstacles that need to be overcome. The Newman Center is being built on land that was previously a parking lot, and this has caused many problems. The construction of the building is expected to be completed in the fall of 2009, and Werkmeister said she is confident that this deadline will be met.

The Newman Center will be a gathering space for students, and it will include a large multi-purpose room, a kitchen, a music room, a storage room, a library, and a lounge. The center is being built to a design that is consistent with the architecture of the building it will replace. The project is being funded by a combination of private donations and grants.

The Newman Center will be open and fully functional in time for Mass at 4 p.m. for Family Day on Saturday, October 10th. The Newman Center will be the site of several events during the fall semester, including Mass, a welcome reception, and a lecture series.

The Newman Center is being built on land that was previously a parking lot, and this has caused many problems. The construction of the building is expected to be completed in the fall of 2009, and Werkmeister said she is confident that this deadline will be met.

The Newman Center will be a gathering space for students, and it will include a large multi-purpose room, a kitchen, a music room, a storage room, a library, and a lounge. The center is being built to a design that is consistent with the architecture of the building it will replace. The project is being funded by a combination of private donations and grants.

The Newman Center will be open and fully functional in time for Mass at 4 p.m. for Family Day on Saturday, October 10th. The Newman Center will be the site of several events during the fall semester, including Mass, a welcome reception, and a lecture series.