Braidlow rules the mat

"I'm a very competitive person. I don't play my girlfriend in golf because she played in high school, and she'd beat me. I pick and choose my battles and make sure that I have the upper hand and can win." - Loyde Braidlow

Truman, Drury women's swim teams compete in battle of Missouri powers

BY BLAKE TOPPMEYER
Sports Editor

Coach Chad Mohr said the "bodies don't lie," and he compared the two schools' women's swim teams to the "football's Ohio State-Michigan rivalry." No matter how it's described, the rivalry between Truman and Drury University has been the biggest in the MIAA for 13 years. Even though the Bulldogs have slipped to the third-place position in the conference, they have a chance to win against Drury on Saturday in Pershing Natatorium

"They're as much of a rival as it can get," Mohr said. "It's a rivalry that continues 1 p.m. Saturday in Pershing Natatorium when the two swim teams compete in a dual meet. The most in Senior Day for the Bulldogs.

In each of the last 12 seasons, the meet for the women's swimming and diving team (also known as Tigers) has been through Missouri. Before the 2000-01 season, no school other than Drury or Truman has ever won the conference championship. Since 1997, the Bulldogs have captured seven of the last eight conference titles.

That rivalry continues 1 p.m. Saturday in Pershing Natatorium when the two swim teams compete in a dual meet. The most in Senior Day for the Bulldogs.

In each of the last 12 seasons, the meet for the women's swimming and diving team (also known as Tigers) has been through Missouri. Before the 2000-01 season, no school other than Drury or Truman has ever won the conference championship. Since 1997, the Bulldogs have captured seven of the last eight conference titles.

That rivalry continues 1 p.m. Saturday in Pershing Natatorium when the two swim teams compete in a dual meet. The most in Senior Day for the Bulldogs.

In each of the last 12 seasons, the meet for the women's swimming and diving team (also known as Tigers) has been through Missouri. Before the 2000-01 season, no school other than Drury or Truman has ever won the conference championship. Since 1997, the Bulldogs have captured seven of the last eight conference titles.

That rivalry continues 1 p.m. Saturday in Pershing Natatorium when the two swim teams compete in a dual meet. The most in Senior Day for the Bulldogs.

In each of the last 12 seasons, the meet for the women's swimming and diving team (also known as Tigers) has been through Missouri. Before the 2000-01 season, no school other than Drury or Truman has ever won the conference championship. Since 1997, the Bulldogs have captured seven of the last eight conference titles.

That rivalry continues 1 p.m. Saturday in Pershing Natatorium when the two swim teams compete in a dual meet. The most in Senior Day for the Bulldogs.

In each of the last 12 seasons, the meet for the women's swimming and diving team (also known as Tigers) has been through Missouri. Before the 2000-01 season, no school other than Drury or Truman has ever won the conference championship. Since 1997, the Bulldogs have captured seven of the last eight conference titles.

That rivalry continues 1 p.m. Saturday in Pershing Natatorium when the two swim teams compete in a dual meet. The most in Senior Day for the Bulldogs.

In each of the last 12 seasons, the meet for the women's swimming and diving team (also known as Tigers) has been through Missouri. Before the 2000-01 season, no school other than Drury or Truman has ever won the conference championship. Since 1997, the Bulldogs have captured seven of the last eight conference titles.

That rivalry continues 1 p.m. Saturday in Pershing Natatorium when the two swim teams compete in a dual meet. The most in Senior Day for the Bulldogs.

In each of the last 12 seasons, the meet for the women's swimming and diving team (also known as Tigers) has been through Missouri. Before the 2000-01 season, no school other than Drury or Truman has ever won the conference championship. Since 1997, the Bulldogs have captured seven of the last eight conference titles.

That rivalry continues 1 p.m. Saturday in Pershing Natatorium when the two swim teams compete in a dual meet. The most in Senior Day for the Bulldogs.

In each of the last 12 seasons, the meet for the women's swimming and diving team (also known as Tigers) has been through Missouri. Before the 2000-01 season, no school other than Drury or Truman has ever won the conference championship. Since 1997, the Bulldogs have captured seven of the last eight conference titles.

That rivalry continues 1 p.m. Saturday in Pershing Natatorium when the two swim teams compete in a dual meet. The most in Senior Day for the Bulldogs.

In each of the last 12 seasons, the meet for the women's swimming and diving team (also known as Tigers) has been through Missouri. Before the 2000-01 season, no school other than Drury or Truman has ever won the conference championship. Since 1997, the Bulldogs have captured seven of the last eight conference titles.

That rivalry continues 1 p.m. Saturday in Pershing Natatorium when the two swim teams compete in a dual meet. The most in Senior Day for the Bulldogs.

In each of the last 12 seasons, the meet for the women's swimming and diving team (also known as Tigers) has been through Missouri. Before the 2000-01 season, no school other than Drury or Truman has ever won the conference championship. Since 1997, the Bulldogs have captured seven of the last eight conference titles.