Romantic opposites built to last

Of all the human emotions, love is perhaps the most unpredictable and complicated. The others are relatively easy: fear, happiness and anger are simple to rationalize and justify. But love can be unexpected, inspired by someone who comes on complete Packages. It can look different for everyone, depending on whether you are a romantic looking for someone with seemingly obvious disadvantages — whether that takes the form of distance, differences in emotions or lifestyles, or a different lifestyle. Often, people will see a relationship based on fear, but it’s easy to avoid starting something that could result in missing out on a great opportunity. It would be a pity to never give a relationship based on fear.

“...It’s easy to avoid starting something new for any number of reasons, but that could result in missing out on a great opportunity..."