The forum will be held in Laclede Hall on Thursday, November 6, from 5 to 7 p.m.

The Student Senate is hosting a forum to discuss the new student conduct code. The forum will be held in Laclede Hall on Thursday, November 6, from 5 to 7 p.m.

The forum will provide an opportunity for students to have their voices heard regarding the new code. The forum will be moderated by Student Senate President Jimmy Lang, who will facilitate discussions and ensure that all perspectives are heard.

The student conduct code is a critical component of the University of Missouri's efforts to promote a positive and respectful campus environment. The code sets forth expectations for student behavior and outlines the procedures for addressing violations of those expectations.

During the forum, attendees will have the opportunity to discuss the new code and provide feedback on its content. The forum will be an important opportunity for the Student Senate to gather input from students and ensure that the code reflects the values and priorities of the University community.

“I encourage all students to attend the forum and share their thoughts and concerns about the new student conduct code,” said Student Senate President Jimmy Lang. “Your input will be used to inform the development of the final code, and it is important that everyone has a voice in shaping the future of our campus community.”

The forum will be held in Laclede Hall, located at 501 W. 12th Street, on Thursday, November 6, from 5 to 7 p.m. Light refreshments will be provided.

The Student Senate is committed to fostering a positive and respectful campus community, and the forum is an important step in that direction. We encourage all students to attend and participate in this important discussion.”
