Although Truman is looking forward to a productive new term, he is not reinventing the coming year to please everyone on campus. Rather, the president notes campuses are ‘a breeding ground of invention in the social matters of students attending college.’

Dixon said the University must continue learning how to operate, admitting that she is always easy to make mistakes but that it's better than someone risking his livelihood. Someone who looks or acts suspicious, they should do something about it. Anything that looks suspicious, you can be a good witness to the police. "The best thing to do is just be a good observer," she said. "Try to be as good as possible to the police."
