

Students’ passions sometimes differ from chosen majors

By Chris Boning

A passion is more than just something people happen to do — it’s something they carry with them forever. Junior Katy Ward, a Spanish and biology major, said she enjoys creating colorful abstract paintings and anything to portray her emotions.

“I love doing it.” she said. “It helps me get away, and it’s just something I like doing. It’s a relaxation kind of thing.”

In high school, Ward said she decided to study art because it’s not something she was interested in, but that in the end she knew she’d be interested in it. Although people may see trees, people see eyes, and the shapes more.”

Junior Cecilia Muruato, a French and Italian major, said she decided to study art because it’s not something she was interested in, but that in the end she knew she’d be interested in it.

Muruato added that much of her inspiration comes from fashion magazines.

“I just makes life a lot easier to have hobbies outside of what you’re focusing on.”

An empty mind makes life much better

By Cecilia Maruton

Junior Katy Ward works on one of her paintings, a piece she started during the summer, in her apartment Sunday.

“I just makes life a lot easier to have hobbies outside of what you’re focusing on.”

Thinking of an internship?

Come to Alumni share their internship and work experiences!

Director inducted into Hall of Fame.

By Paul Bischoff

Paul Bischoff

The Missouri Bandmasters’ Association Hall of Fame inducted a number of Truman students.

“Ward said. “That’s a pretty significant achievement, it’s a big deal that people are doing it.”

Junior Katy Ward works on one of her paintings, a piece she started during the summer, in her apartment Sunday.

“Ward said. “That’s a pretty significant achievement, it’s a big deal that people are doing it.”

Junior Katy Ward works on one of her paintings, a piece she started during the summer, in her apartment Sunday.

“Ward said. “That’s a pretty significant achievement, it’s a big deal that people are doing it.”

Junior Katy Ward works on one of her paintings, a piece she started during the summer, in her apartment Sunday.

“Ward said. “That’s a pretty significant achievement, it’s a big deal that people are doing it.”

Junior Katy Ward works on one of her paintings, a piece she started during the summer, in her apartment Sunday.

“Ward said. “That’s a pretty significant achievement, it’s a big deal that people are doing it.”