Head coach Duke Cohran indicated Tuesday that his team's offense was the key to its recent dominance over a pair of Missouri teams in the Gateway Conference.

"I think the match was already decided when I finished the second half," Cohran said.

"We need some need with that killer instinct that wants to put away big goals," he said.

Junior Kyle Schlotz keeps his eye on the ball as he prepares to hit a backhand. Against Westminster on Wednesday, Schlotz won both of his matches, at No. 1 and No. 2 singles, to help the Bulldogs win.

This week's results were an anticlimactic return to reality for the men's tennis team. A lackluster 7-0 loss to the Autonomous University of Mexico (AU) was immediately followed by a 6-1 victory over Westminster College (Mo.) to improve the Bulldogs to 4-2 on the season.

The only match Truman lost came from senior No. 1 singles player Brett Hipkiss. The Bulldogs rallied to win the second set 6-1, then evened the match with the clinching third set at 6-4.

"I think the match was already decided when I finished the second half," Cohran said. "We need some need with that killer instinct that wants to put away big goals."
