

Give banks power to charge students interest on loans at rates higher than 18 percent.

A nation-wide campaign, supported by the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators, is aimed at raising awareness of some of the issues that college students face. The campaign includes a website, gottuition.org, that provides information on the Got Tuition? campaign. Information included on the website includes:

- The cost of college: $24,000 on average for tuition and fees, as well as room and board.
- The economic impact of college graduates on the economy.
- The importance of college in preparing students for the workforce.
- The opportunities for college through financial aid.

The Got Tuition? campaign aims to raise awareness of the cost of college and the importance of higher education. The website includes information on how to pay for college, including financial aid options.

The website also includes a guide for students on how to manage their finances while in college. The guide includes tips on budgeting, saving, and avoiding debt.

In addition to the website, the campaign includes a series of ads that highlight the importance of college and the benefits of a college education. The ads aim to appeal to both current and future college students, and to encourage them to consider the importance of higher education.

The campaign also includes partnerships with organizations that support higher education, such as the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators and the National Association of Independent College Admissions Counselors.

The Got Tuition? campaign is a response to the increasing cost of college and the need for higher education. The campaign aims to raise awareness of the importance of college and to encourage students to pursue higher education.

More information is available on the website, gottuition.org.
