New faculty moves to campus

BY BETHA MULLER

It’s time to welcome a new class of buildings to campus. In the row of a number of students, several new professors will arrive at Kirksville. Several of these professors have chosen Truman as a place to judge, ’you don’t want to make a decision that might be over your head. ’ And now I’m simultaneously in a room full of students and faculty. ’

Hamrick, who studied at the University of Missouri, said he has a demanding schedule, than I had after earning his M.S. or doctoral degree.

Theresa Frey, associate professor of accounting, said she had an easy transition to Kirksville. Frey recently traveled to a class to get [an idea of the] teaching experience of new faculty. ‘It is time to welcome a new is scared too. And I’m just going to go in there and say, ‘Yeah I think you wouldn’t like, you should

in English and Truman. The English, temporary work in

he sees in the political science department.

Joe Baumann, who studied at

Kirksville the University of Memphis. So, as a transition, it’s

Several of these professors have man and all the different clubs and friends for all the different area of expertise. This is my

General Electric, Shell Oil, Exxon Mobil groups seem pretty obvious: DuPont, Dow Chemical. However, there are Some companies that have been called contemporary environmental movement.

the 1960s and 1970s at the start of the green remains popular, individuals must be aware of the interests consumers to be aware of the interests businesses, corporations and companies hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of and Dow Chemical. However, there are groups seem pretty obvious: DuPont, out by environmental organizations such at Truman for six years, has re-

This is a whole

"I decided to go back to col-

Because

they are supporting.

Green concept loses face

INDEX

New Students | Students and alumni pass on advice to new generation

Continued From Page 8

you just throw it all to the wind and think everything’s going to be

He also said the people he connected with at the business degree thetras more valuable than anything he learned in the classroom. For example, Mr. Frantzen came from reading the new books and fair and considering other people’s feelings before deciding a selection.

Brian Kirkwood, director of University of Counseling Services, said that although the first few months are most stressful, students should not put pressure into the initial five and seven years.

The first few weeks you do get it is relatively consumer-friendly. That is,

New Students | Students and alumni pass on advice to new generation

Students and alumni pass on advice to new generation

continued from page 5

Don’t make the common mistake of constantly calling home your best mates or club members, Krylowicz said.

is scared too. And I’m just going to go in there and say, ‘Yeah I think you wouldn’t like, you should

in English and Truman. The

English, temporary work in

he sees in the political science department.

Joe Baumann, who studied at

Kirksville the University of

 Memphis. So, as a transition, it’s

Several of these professors have

man and all the different clubs

and friends for all the different

area of expertise. This is my

General Electric, Shell Oil, Exxon Mobil

groups seem pretty obvious: DuPont,

out by environmental organizations such

at Truman for six years, has re-

This is a whole

"I decided to go back to
col-

Because

they are supporting.

Green concept loses face

INDEX

New Students | Students and alumni pass on advice to new generation

Continued From Page 8

you just throw it all to the

wind and think everything’s going to be

He also said the people he

connected with at the business
degree thetras more valuable than anything he learned in the classroom. For example, Mr. Frantzen

came from reading the new books

and fair and considering other people’s feelings before
deciding a selection.

Brian Kirkwood, director of University of Counseling Services, said that although the first few months are most stressful, students should not put pressure into the initial five and seven years.

The first few weeks you do get

it is relatively consumer-friendly. That is,

New Students | Students and alumni pass on advice to new generation

Students and alumni pass on advice to new generation

continued from page 5

Don’t make the common mistake

of constantly calling home your best

mates or club members, Krylowicz said.

is scared too. And I’m just going to go in there and say, ‘Yeah I think you wouldn’t like, you should

in English and Truman. The

English, temporary work in

he sees in the political science department.

Joe Baumann, who studied at

Kirksville the University of

 Memphis. So, as a transition, it’s

Several of these professors have

man and all the different clubs

and friends for all the different

area of expertise. This is my

General Electric, Shell Oil, Exxon Mobil

groups seem pretty obvious: DuPont,

out by environmental organizations such

at Truman for six years, has re-

This is a whole

"I decided to go back to
col-

Because

they are supporting.

Green concept loses face

INDEX

New Students | Students and alumni pass on advice to new generation

Continued From Page 8

you just throw it all to the

wind and think everything’s going to be

He also said the people he

connected with at the business
degree thetras more valuable than anything he learned in the classroom. For example, Mr. Frantzen

came from reading the new books

and fair and considering other people’s feelings before
deciding a selection.

Brian Kirkwood, director of University of Counseling Services, said that although the first few months are most stressful,

students should not put pressure into the initial five and seven years.

The first few weeks you do get

it is relatively consumer-friendly. That is,

New Students | Students and alumni pass on advice to new generation

Students and alumni pass on advice to new generation

continued from page 5

Don’t make the common mistake

of constantly calling home your best

mates or club members, Krylowicz said.

is scared too. And I’m just going to go in there and say, ‘Yeah I think you wouldn’t like, you should

in English and Truman. The

English, temporary work in

he sees in the political science department.

Joe Baumann, who studied at

Kirksville the University of

 Memphis. So, as a transition, it’s

Several of these professors have

man and all the different clubs

and friends for all the different

area of expertise. This is my

General Electric, Shell Oil, Exxon Mobil

groups seem pretty obvious: DuPont,

out by environmental organizations such

at Truman for six years, has re-

This is a whole

"I decided to go back to
col-

Because

they are supporting.

Green concept loses face

INDEX

New Students | Students and alumni pass on advice to new generation

Continued From Page 8

you just throw it all to the

wind and think everything’s going to be

He also said the people he

connected with at the business
degree thetras more valuable than anything he learned in the classroom. For example, Mr. Frantzen

came from reading the new books

and fair and considering other people’s feelings before
deciding a selection.

Brian Kirkwood, director of University of Counseling Services, said that although the first few months are most stressful,

students should not put pressure into the initial five and seven years.

The first few weeks you do get

it is relatively consumer-friendly. That is,