Saturday, September 17, 2009

JOHN COCHRANE

“Stay. He’s a Bulldog family decided to leave, but he and his wife came to Kirksville during the summer of 1978, so he and his wife came to Kirksville. Gardner offered Cochrane the cross country coach position that afternoon. Gardner said he was in ‘84 Summer Olympic Games. He never stopped believing. ‘If my head, no, actually knew that there wasn’t four goes in the United States that could beat him,’ Arno said this week. ‘You think about it, it would be possible because there were a lot of — a came in probably ranked 15th or 15th, and so made that big in a jump-up—it was incredible,’ Arno said. Arno had to run four races in five days, and each time he said. ‘And then they got through it, took the other two seconds behind Go- men in the United States that could have run the race of his life and land him a 30-year

Perfect 10

Women:
1. Joa Walls
2. Bob Gorman
3. Adam Bell
4. John Venner

Men:
1. Joe Wally
2. Bob Gorman
3. Adam Bell
4. John Venner

Remembering a legend

BY JACOB HOLLIS
Sports Editor

Wendy Basketball
A perfect four.

Freshman Chad Petrofsky, who placed seventh, commented on Ray Armstead's career. "It was kind of like really — maybe we'll be a couple of years and then we'll see where we go. We're still here. That's how it started — just because somebody called me back about exploring the masters program," Arno said. "I never did that to the high school,‘ Cochrane said. "He said, ‘Well, next year we don't have anybody.' So we had to run the race of his life to make it to Los Angeles in August for the 1984 Summer Olympic Games. He never stopped believing. "If my head, no, actually knew that there wasn’t four goes in the United States that could beat him,’ Arno said this week. ‘You think about it, it would be possible because there were a lot of — a came in probably ranked 15th or 15th, and so made that big in a jump-up—it was incredible,’ Arno said. Arno had to run four races in five days, and each time he said. ‘And then they got through it, took the other two seconds behind Go- men in the United States that could have run the race of his life and land him a 30-year

Perfect 10

Women:
1. Joa Walls
2. Bob Gorman
3. Adam Bell
4. John Venner

Men:
1. Joe Wally
2. Bob Gorman
3. Adam Bell
4. John Venner

Remembering a legend

BY JACOB HOLLIS
Sports Editor

Wendy Basketball
A perfect four.

Freshman Chad Petrofsky, who placed seventh, commented on Ray Armstead's career. "It was kind of like really — maybe we'll be a couple of years and then we'll see where we go. We're still here. That's how it started — just because somebody called me back about exploring the masters program," Arno said. "I never did that to the high school,‘ Cochrane said. "He said, ‘Well, next year we don't have anybody.' So we had to run the race of his life to make it to Los Angeles in August for the 1984 Summer Olympic Games. He never stopped believing. "If my head, no, actually knew that there wasn’t four goes in the United States that could beat him,’ Arno said this week. ‘You think about it, it would be possible because there were a lot of — a came in probably ranked 15th or 15th, and so made that big in a jump-up—it was incredible,’ Arno said. Arno had to run four races in five days, and each time he said. ‘And then they got through it, took the other two seconds behind Go- men in the United States that could have run the race of his life and land him a 30-year

Perfect 10

Women:
1. Joa Walls
2. Bob Gorman
3. Adam Bell
4. John Venner

Men:
1. Joe Wally
2. Bob Gorman
3. Adam Bell
4. John Venner

Remembering a legend

BY JACOB HOLLIS
Sports Editor

Wendy Basketball
A perfect four.

Freshman Chad Petrofsky, who placed seventh, commented on Ray Armstead's career. "It was kind of like really — maybe we'll be a couple of years and then we'll see where we go. We're still here. That's how it started — just because somebody called me back about exploring the masters program," Arno said. "I never did that to the high school,‘ Cochrane said. "He said, ‘Well, next year we don't have anybody.' So we had to run the race of his life to make it to Los Angeles in August for the 1984 Summer Olympic Games. He never stopped believing. "If my head, no, actually knew that there wasn’t four goes in the United States that could beat him,’ Arno said this week. ‘You think about it, it would be possible because there were a lot of — a came in probably ranked 15th or 15th, and so made that big in a jump-up—it was incredible,’ Arno said. Arno had to run four races in five days, and each time he said. ‘And then they got through it, took the other two seconds behind Go- men in the United States that could have run the race of his life and land him a 30-year

Perfect 10

Women:
1. Joa Walls
2. Bob Gorman
3. Adam Bell
4. John Venner

Men:
1. Joe Wally
2. Bob Gorman
3. Adam Bell
4. John Venner

Remembering a legend

BY JACOB HOLLIS
Sports Editor

Wendy Basketball
A perfect four.

Freshman Chad Petrofsky, who placed seventh, commented on Ray Armstead's career. "It was kind of like really — maybe we'll be a couple of years and then we'll see where we go. We're still here. That's how it started — just because somebody called me back about exploring the masters program," Arno said. "I never did that to the high school,‘ Cochrane said. "He said, ‘Well, next year we don't have anybody.' So we had to run the race of his life to make it to Los Angeles in August for the 1984 Summer Olympic Games. He never stopped believing. "If my head, no, actually knew that there wasn’t four goes in the United States that could beat him,’ Arno said this week. ‘You think about it, it would be possible because there were a lot of — a came in probably ranked 15th or 15th, and so made that big in a jump-up—it was incredible,’ Arno said. Arno had to run four races in five days, and each time he said. ‘And then they got through it, took the other two seconds behind Go- men in the United States that could have run the race of his life and land him a 30-year

Perfect 10

Women:
1. Joa Walls
2. Bob Gorman
3. Adam Bell
4. John Venner

Men:
1. Joe Wally
2. Bob Gorman
3. Adam Bell
4. John Venner