He said that since the Truman health center and residence life office, which is responsible for student health policies, and by passing H1N1 is a public health pandemic, some of the actions that he still does it. He said he has almost 100 cases of H1N1 in the past six months. The health center has ordered more than 6,000 doses of the H1N1 vaccine, and has already administered more than 1,000 doses.

He said that he would be cautious when looking at the H1N1 vaccine. "It all depends on how many doses we have," he said. "But the vaccine won't be available until the second week of September." Higgins said that they are waiting for the H1N1 vaccine to arrive before they can administer it.

He said that the H1N1 vaccine is important because it can help prevent the spread of the disease. "It's totally unrealistic to think that we can stop H1N1 from being at Truman," Cozette said. "But we can prepare for possible outbreaks."

Higgins said the health center has ordered more than 6,000 doses of the H1N1 vaccine, and has already administered more than 1,000 doses.
