Airlines compete for contract

New changes could include online ticketing, more flights

BY SHIHARA MADUWAGE Staff Reporter

Several airlines have made proposals to become the new air service provider for the Kirksville Regional Airport. The airlines include the current air service provider Air Choice One in addition to Cape Airlines, Charter Transport and

Pacific Airlines. Airport Director David Hall said Air

Choice One's current two-year contract will expire in July and the Department of Transportation will have to choose a new air carrier or renew the existing contract. He said the deadline to submit the proposals is Friday.

"I have received inquiries from four airlines that have told me that they will submit proposals," Hall said. "We are asking those air carriers to come to Kirksville, and we are asking them to do [a] presentation about the company."

He said DOT already has scheduled dates for three of the airlines to do presentations this month and that the fourth airline > will present in the near future. He said the final decision would be made by the DOT, which will consider recommendations from the community. "There are several factors that will dictate who [the DOT] would choose," Hall said. "In theory, DOT will probably make a selection next month and expect services to start Aug. 1."

He said one of the components the airport has been trying to implement is online ticketing, which the current provider does not offer. However, he said that in the near future Air Choice One might implement it and two of the other companies that have submitted proposals possess this ability already.

Hall said that apart from the ticketing component, the current provider has provided solid and dependable service with very few cancellations or other problems.

He said two of the carriers have suggested that there would be three flights daily instead of the two the airport currently offers. He said this depends on the subsidy provided by the DOT for the company.

"The more frequency, [the] better the connectivity," Hall said. "So that is good news for

He said the current ridership is around 2,500 annually, and that the goal is to increase the ridership. He said that ideally, the airport would have about 4.000 riders annually. However, he said that compared to the past, there has been a steady increase in the ridership in the last few years.

"We are doing the best we can," Hall said. "Hopefully, perhaps the air carrier, whoever it would be, will step up and help with some of the costs. But that is our hurdle — to get people aware of the service and get them to use the service."

He said he is optimistic about this year because with the four proposal submissions, they have a better choice than they had with the two submissions at the previous airline carrier turn-

City Manager Mari Macomber said the community is in the process of viewing presentations for each of the carriers.

Macomber said the carrier has to meet guidelines from the DOT. She said the DOT requires a $200 per passenger cap, which is part of the contract.

"[Ridership] has increased, but they are still not what they need to be to bring the subsidy down," Macomber said.

She said the most significant improvement the airport is hoping to make is providing Internet access on the planes for the passengers.

Student Senate supports repainting University fountain

BY SHIHARA MADUWAGE Staff Reporter

With the weather getting warmer and the sun shining brighter, the cool jet of water spouting from the fountain in the Mall is a refreshing sight. Workers from the Physical plant reinstalled the plumbing and turned on the fountain last week, but some students want more.

Physical Plant director Karl Schneider, said the University encounters problems with the fountain every year and has to do some maintenance on it at

He also said that the Physical Plant will replace damaged the bricks around the fountain, but will not redo the bricks completely because it would be a very large project. "It is not in very good condition," Schneider said. "It probably should be done, but no one

Jerry Findling, manager of the Student Union Building, said the only time the fountain does not work is when the pumps are out and the weather is too cold. He said the weather conditions and the wind are big factors that determine the condition of the fountain.

has the money to do it."

"We pull the pumps out in the winter time, so [they have] to be put back in," Findling said. "Usually, we don't put the pumps in until April 1."

He said they have to wait until the weather is above freezing to put the pumps back in and start the fountain. They did not have to do any other repairs to the fountain system this time, and they have not lost any pumps.

"There were no ongoing problems," Findling said. "Just time and weather."

Findling said the fountain usually is turned on at 8 a.m. and is turned off around 8:30 p.m. He said the University also turns it on for special occasions on campus, such as visit days, graduation and Homecoming and the SUB management sometimes colors the water to make it look more appealing.

"On occasion, [the fountain] has problems," Findling said. "It takes a while to clean it. It needs to be cleaned at least once a week. More so, blowing leaves get into it."

Findling said the Physical Plant will do more work on the bricks later in the year.

He said the fountain is an asset to the University, although it is expensive to maintain. He said it would be very helpful if the students aided in maintaining the fountain.

Junior Lauren Robertson, student affairs chair for the Student Senate, said she wrote a resolution to support the repairs and possibly the repainting of the fountain. Senate passed the resolution.

"I had heard from several students that the fountain did not look very good anymore," Robertson said.

She said she is concerned about the bricks that are falling off and she thought that if it is repainted, it would make the fountain look more attractive when it is turned off.

"A paint job would look really cool," Robertson said. "What I envisioned was what is on the bookstore website, which is a computerized picture of the fountain. Something like that would be awesome.'

Finding said repainting the fountain will not happen anytime in the near future unless the University finds a paint that can last for longer than a year. He said that the last time the painted the fountain, it cost $4,000.

"[The paint] does not last long enough to make up for the cost involved," Findling said. "It is very costly but does look nice. But there is just not money available."

Robertson said her committee has been talking to the Plant manager and campus planner about the possibility of renovating the fountain in the future. The estimated cost is $10,000.

"The fountain does not recycle the water right now," Robertson said. "If we plan a renovation process in the future, it would be really cool if we could find a way to recycle the water, because that would help Truman be more sustainable." She said that in her opinion, the fountain is an important monument and is a very memorable part of campus.

"Truman does have a gorgeous campus," Robertson said. "But the fountain does not look [as] good as it could look. It would be really important to potential students that are looking into it. I think it should look its best."
