The Square instead,” Stacey said.

$175 and put it towards organizing caroling in consignment store on the north side of The square. But also the possibility of winning things to do here. Everything is fun, but that's include all genres with decorating and making little contemporary,” Wine said. “The other win-ate displays that will attract a variety of people.

It seemed like not very many people ever take all day .”

a full day to decorate the window.

an apparent shower of blown glass cat and dog puppies lining the bottom of the window from visible wire, sheltering the stuffed kittens and

Students demonstrate odd talents
BY ANNA MESSER

Walking among the masses of Truman students, one can find the typical young men and women surrounding them.

Several Truman students perform odd tricks such as a ventriloquist, bicycle-riding, some kind of a talent show but was recruited by

"I was wearing tennis shoes and wasn't and I was laying on my stomach watching a Disney movie, and I just kicked myself in the back of the head, Ringling said she soon kicked herself in the back of her head for the second time.

The Masonic Temple at 217 E. Harrison St. and displays Egyptian Revival architecture. Inside, the buildings concentrate on the Kirkville community through charity services.

The Masonic Temple is located at 217 E. Harrison St. and displays Egyptian Revival architecture. Inside, the buildings concentrate on the Kirkville community through charity services.

BY SHANNON WALTER Staff Reporter

Egyptian Revival architecture sits in the middle of Kirkville, competing to be the Masonic Temple at 217 E. Harrison St. built in 1919.

David Powell, Masonic Temple board-prespent and Lodge Number 105 secretary, said, he has been a part of the Masons for about 40 years. He was originally initiated into the lodge in 1979, Ill. He said when he moved to Kirkville in 1989, he immediately became involved with the lodge.

It’s something that most people think is also the Masonic Temple is located at 217 E. Harrison St. and displays Egyptian Revival architecture. Inside, the buildings concentrate on the Kirkville community through charity services.

The Masonic Temple is located at 217 E. Harrison St. and displays Egyptian Revival architecture. Inside, the buildings concentrate on the Kirkville community through charity services.

BY SHANNON WALTER Staff Reporter

Egyptian Revival architecture sits in the middle of Kirkville, competing to be the Masonic Temple at 217 E. Harrison St. built in 1919.

David Powell, Masonic Temple board-pres-
pent and Lodge Number 105 secretary, said,
he has been a part of the Masons for about 40 years. He was originally initiated into the lodge in 1979, Ill. He said when he moved to Kirkville in 1989, he immediately became involved with the lodge.

It’s something that most people think is also the Masonic Temple is located at 217 E. Harrison St. and displays Egyptian Revival architecture. Inside, the buildings concentrate on the Kirkville community through charity services.

The Masonic Temple is located at 217 E. Harrison St. and displays Egyptian Revival architecture. Inside, the buildings concentrate on the Kirkville community through charity services.

BY SHANNON WALTER Staff Reporter

Egyptian Revival architecture sits in the middle of Kirkville, competing to be the Masonic Temple at 217 E. Harrison St. built in 1919.

David Powell, Masonic Temple board-pres-
pent and Lodge Number 105 secretary, said,
he has been a part of the Masons for about 40 years. He was originally initiated into the lodge in 1979, Ill. He said when he moved to Kirkville in 1989, he immediately became involved with the lodge.