INSIDE TRULife

COMMUNITY

LOCAL BAND

Winterfest

Journal Printing Building housed two bands who rocked the place Page 13

REVIEW

“Dear John”

Film continues to use the Nichols Spark formula and leaves viewer disappointed Page 12

BE MINE BE MINE

Bayonetta

Newly released Xbox360,93 game turns villagers on all forms Page 12

TRULove

THREES COUPLES SHARE STORIES OF PROPOSALS AND WEDDINGS

BY SHARON SHINNEMAN

Assistant Features Editor

An Valentine’s Day approach- en, the Index sought testimonies with married couples about their love and their wedding.

Senior history major John Taylor is married to Jill Taylor, a graduate of Biola University in Los Angeles. Jill, who is apply- ing to Truman’s English MA pro- gram, married John in July.

How they met:

John spent six years in the military and met his wife in 2005 through her band, while he was stationed in Okinawa. Jill attended an army base military school in California. She joined the band for a few weeks, and they decided to try to snuggle with the bass drummers, where John enrolled his band.

The proposal:

John and Jill had been dating for one year when she moved to Okinawa. At the time John was stationed in Georgia, and they wanted a chance to see each other. Jill had always considered her grandfather to be the only stable person, but she wanted to be the only stable person. Jill’s grandfather said, “Just be a boy with a ring to it, and I’ll love you.”

The wedding:

On August 1, 2009, John and Jill married in the church Jill grew up in. They had a ceremony in the morning, and the reception was held in the evening, and in the music depart- ment. Jill said, “I thought it was really thinking about that stage of life, it’s almost like a stigma. ”

On July 18, 2009, Jon Gill and Erin Collins married at First Presbyterian Church in Kirksville. They had a family reunion, because her family is really big. “The next day after the wedding ends, she’s getting on a plane to New Jersey to New Jersey to New Jersey to New Jersey. I go as smoothly as possible. “My bright idea is that I’m just going to ask her at the airport, that way she can tell all of her friends.”

The wedding:

On Oct. 18, 2008, Matt and Meghan Weber married at First Baptist Church in Kirksville. They had a family reunion, because her family is really big. “The next day after the wedding ends, she’s getting on a plane to New Jersey to New Jersey to New Jersey to New Jersey. I go as smoothly as possible. “My bright idea is that I’m just going to ask her at the airport, that way she can tell all of her friends.”

The proposal:

The proposal:

On Oct. 18, 2008, Matt and Meghan Weber married at First Baptist Church in Kirksville. They had a family reunion, because her family is really big. “The next day after the wedding ends, she’s getting on a plane to New Jersey to New Jersey to New Jersey to New Jersey. I go as smoothly as possible. “My bright idea is that I’m just going to ask her at the airport, that way she can tell all of her friends.”

TRULife

Thursday, February 11, 2010 www.trumanindex.com

Volume 101, Issue 19 Copyright 2010