Senior Nathan Vickers grew up watching the Late Show with David Letterman, but he would have laughed if someone told him he would be working there one day.

Fast forward to present day, and Vickers has been living in New York for almost two months, working as an intern in the show.

He works for the human interest department, which means he goes through newspapers and magazines to find potential guests for the show'sечениe and the Late Show's "5 Minutes With..." segments.

"I'm the intern who fields phone calls and books guests," he said. "I also make sure our guests are...
