A sign on the Quad on Friday reminds students of the waste that partying creates.

For young people planning to take part in on-campus events, the following tips are encouraged: turn off lights when leaving the house, set off to drink wine or liquor instead of beer and bring reusable cups. In addition, many students are purchasing reusable coffee mugs, which can be left at the office or residence hall to reduce waste. Students who attend parties will also be encouraged to use reusable plates instead of disposable ones.

Tim Beck, deputy chief for the Kirksville Police Department, said the Kirksville Regional Computer Crimes Unit has been in place for five years. He said the unit's task is to investigate and resolve cases of sexual exploitation of children (SEC) throughout the state.

There is one full-time employee who is the lead investigator working in the unit, but he said they are always looking for untrained volunteers, especially in training position.

"I wish we had more volunteers and I wish we had more training," said Beck. "I think that's one of the problems. We're not able to get as many resources to where they are needed."

The Missouri Department of Justice administers the Program for the Protection of Children, which provides funding for the Missouri Regional Computer Crimes Unit. The Kirksville Regional Computer Crimes Unit is one of the Missouri Regional Computer Crimes Units.

"The good thing about it all, if there is any way that we really didn't get the free resources where they are needed," Rodgerson said. "I think that's when we're able to identify myself [to the police officer]."

"That's why it's important to keep our eyes open for any suspicious activity," Rodgerson said. "It's important to keep our eyes open for any suspicious activity."
