Communication professor plays in local band Savage Henry outside of the classroom

By EMMA MULLER
Staff Reporter

A Washington DC, the city where I grew up as a young musician, and played music for most of my life. It is the best place to be an active musician because it is full of opportunities and events. I have always been passionate about music, and I continue to play music regularly. When I am not performing, I enjoy teaching music to students who share my same passion.

Today, Cianciola is part of the three-piece local band, Savage Henry. However, music is not his only passion. He is also involved in various community events and organizations. In honor of a year-long celebration of Lincoln's 200th birthday, Tom Trimborn, professor of music, will share his passion for Lincoln through music and storytelling.

"I was in the college classroom, and I realized the instability of this career and decided to try out college life at age 20. Hailing from a musical dynasty, Trimborn's family has a long history of involvement in the arts. Trimborn's father, a music director for local and national bands, and his mother, a singer, helped shape his passion for music.

"To me, artists and photographers were the heroes of our generation," Trimborn said. "They showed me that a person can make a difference in the world through the arts." Trimborn has been involved in various musical projects throughout his life, including playing with the Truman Brass Choir and Cantoria.

"One of my favorite things about playing with the brass choir is that we are able to bring music to people who might not otherwise have access to it," Trimborn said. "It is rewarding to see the joy on people's faces when they hear music for the first time." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimborn and his students have performed at various events throughout the United States, including the dedication of the Soldiers' National Cemetery in Gettysburg.

"Playing with the brass choir is one of the most fulfilling experiences of my life," Trimborn said. "It is a honor to be able to share music with others and to make a difference in their lives." Trimbor...