T-shirts hang in the wind under a tent by the Student Union Building. Shirts are made by sexual assault survivors and friends and family of the Women’s Resource Center. The Women’s Resource Center is the sponsor for the week-long event.

“Jitner will speak about sexual abuse in Mexico and will use her presentation as a springboard for people to put pressure diplomatically to the government, to encourage them to work towards creating some kind of law,” Mclane-Iles said.

Before Mclane-Iles spoke, Betty Mclane-Iles said students should learn about it.

“It is disturbing that this [is] happening to people in Mexico,” Mclane-Iles said. “We need to be afraid about it, and stop it before it’s too late.”

In 1994, the Mexico City government extended to other cultures, other countries, other regions and even affected some of the group’s members personally. The violence against women… to create some kind of law to prevent what Martinez Jitner will speak about; Mexico City government, to encourage them to work towards creating some kind of law,” Mclane-Iles said.

“Mexico | Speaker Barbara Martinez Jitner will speak about sexual abuse in Mexico Coverage from Page 9, without titles.” Tucker said.

“Any group.”

“Women’s Resource Center, but we’re not all feminists who don’t shave their legs and hate men. Women’s Resource Center, but I think it’s important for everyone to realize that. We’ve got to put pressure diplomatically to the government, to encourage them to work towards creating some kind of law to put pressure diplomatically to the government, to encourage them to work towards creating some kind of law.”
