Jodi Degele
Associated Press

The Index was recognized as the top newspaper in its category in a regional competition on Saturday in Lincoln, Neb.

The Best of Show award reflects dominance in news coverage, design and layout. Bygone was chosen as the best overall newspaper.

“One reason I’m really excited is that the Index went down fewer than 3 percent in circulation and revenue,” said Kent Christiansen, assistant professor of communication. “I’m just really, really pleased with the turn around. I know that this indicates that we are doing something right. It’s a trend that we want to keep going.”

The Index also was one of 33 finalists for the Dan Gray award for excellence in college newspapers. The award was given by the College Media Association at its recent national convention in San Diego.

The Index was the only South Dakota school selected from a pool of 180 college newspapers nationwide that entered the competition.

“Going into the competition, we didn’t even think we had a chance,” said Emily Christiansen, assistant professor of classics, said he does not

The Index also was among the finalists for the Pacemaker Award, which the ACP and the Newspaper Association of America present to the best college and university newspapers in the nation.

The Index was one of two finalists for the Pacemaker award in the editorial category. It was selected from a pool of 2,722 college newspapers nationwide.

The Index was recognized as the top newspaper in its category in a regional competition on Saturday, April 19, in Lincoln, Neb. The Best of Show award reflects dominance in news coverage, design and layout. Bygone was chosen as the best overall newspaper.

“One reason I’m really excited is that the Index went down fewer than 3 percent in circulation and revenue,” said Kent Christiansen, assistant professor of communication. “I’m just really, really pleased with the turn around. I know that this indicates that we are doing something right. It’s a trend that we want to keep going.”

The Index also was one of 33 finalists for the Dan Gray award for excellence in college newspapers. The award was given by the College Media Association at its recent national convention in San Diego.

The Index was the only South Dakota school selected from a pool of 180 college newspapers nationwide that entered the competition.

“Going into the competition, we didn’t even think we had a chance,” said Emily Christiansen, assistant professor of classics, said he does not

The Index also was among the finalists for the Pacemaker Award, which the ACP and the Newspaper Association of America present to the best college and university newspapers in the nation.

The Index was one of two finalists for the Pacemaker award in the editorial category. It was selected from a pool of 2,722 college newspapers nationwide.

“Since these are our most valuable students, they are given everything that students are given in the rest of our programs,” said Emily Christiansen, assistant professor of classics, said he does not

The Index also was among the finalists for the Pacemaker Award, which the ACP and the Newspaper Association of America present to the best college and university newspapers in the nation.

The Index was one of two finalists for the Pacemaker award in the editorial category. It was selected from a pool of 2,722 college newspapers nationwide.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.

Adam Claypool
Associated Press

Many new students think that the 3.25 grade point average necessary to keep a Truman scholarship is too high.

Scholarship requirements do not differ significantly from those the students used to attend their respective high schools.