Around the Quad

This week’s question: Are you planning to do an internshhip this summer? If not, why not?

“Yeah, I have an internship. It’s an editorial internship with Entertain Press in Chicago. It was a long process to get it.”

“Me neither. I’m working at a camp teaching little kids to ski. I’m doing it for the money, not the kids.”

“Me neither. I’m doing a research project for professor. It’s related to my major.”

“Me neither. I’m doing an internship this summer because I neglected to apply for one, but I’m going to get a job anyway.”

Religion has damaged America’s rationality

As philosopher Karl Marx once said

“Religion is the opium of the masses.”

Liberals, occasional and irresponsible use of religion, justify damaging results, except the loss of freedom and
