of our hands," he said. "That's one thing we all work together on."

"Before an officer can get hired in our department," he said, "he has to complete a six-week basic training course. He'll get his duty belt, his firearm, his taser, his baton, his handcuffs, his ballistic vest, his utility vest, and other items."

"If he passes that, he'll start working at the police department," Hughes said. "The officer will work in the city, and they'll start working in planes."

"If an officer is not trained, the city will not hire him," Hughes said. "They have to be well-trained, and educated."

"The police department is very selective," Hughes said. "They have to have the right personalities, and the right skills."
