Junior fills multiple roles

BY MEREDITH KUSKY
Staff Reporter

The women’s soccer team is 2-4 in the MIAA. That record might have been 0-2 without the help of junior midfielder Kaitlyn Twellman. This past Saturday, Twellman scored the halftime goal against Missouri Southern and again in the 15th minute against Fort Hays State. On Sept. 22, Twellman scored another game-winning goal against Missouri Southern’s State University during overtime.

Twellman is not new to scoring game-winning goals during overtime. During the 2009 season, Twellman made her presence known by scoring three goals and five assists.

Cannon said Twellman has a confidence about her. She knows the moment at which she needs confidence, but does not come off as arrogant, which is important. He also makes the point that Twellman can rely on Twellman to produce when it matters, he said.

In the 2010 season, Twellman named Truman, all-MIAA after recording two goals and seven assists as a sophomore. She was a part of 13 shots on goal while starting in 18 games and playing 1155 minutes. Twellman also was named to the all-MIAA second team.

“She stepped up and filled the spot we needed her to and she’s been doing it ever since,” senior midfielder Heather Niebling said.

Twellman proved herself as a leader on and off the field. She is definitely topped all my coaches,” senior midfielder Melissa Abell said.

Twellman said the people in the soccer program are a big part of her success during past seasons, although Twellman has had success during past seasons, she is not a perfect player. She will be one of the first to admit to mistakes. "I make a bad pass or take a bad shot but I think I can do better and that inspires me to improve.”

Twellman’s determination, fire, positive attitude, confidence and love for the game are all factors that make her the playmaker and leader she is. “She goes out for every ball all the time,” Niebling said. "She loves soccer and you can tell by the way she plays, she’s a great player.”

Although Twellman has had success during past seasons, she is not a perfect player. She will be one of the first to admit to mistakes. “I make a bad pass or take a bad shot but I think I can do better and that inspires me to improve.”

Twellman said the people in the soccer program are a big part of her success during past seasons, although Twellman has had success during past seasons, she is not a perfect player. She will be one of the first to admit to mistakes. “I make a bad pass or take a bad shot but I think I can do better and that inspires me to improve.”

Twellman’s determination, fire, positive attitude, confidence and love for the game are all factors that make her the playmaker and leader she is. “She goes out for every ball all the time,” Niebling said. "She loves soccer and you can tell by the way she plays, she’s a great player.”

BY MEREDITH KUSKY
Staff Reporter

The women’s soccer team is 2-4 in the MIAA. That record might have been 0-2 without the help of junior midfielder Kaitlyn Twellman. This past Saturday, Twellman scored the halftime goal against Missouri Southern and again in the 15th minute against Fort Hays State. On Sept. 22, Twellman scored another game-winning goal against Missouri Southern’s State University during overtime.

Twellman is not new to scoring game-winning goals during overtime. During the 2009 season, Twellman made her presence known by scoring three goals and five assists.

Cannon said Twellman has a confidence about her. She knows the moment at which she needs confidence, but does not come off as arrogant, which is important. He also makes the point that Twellman can rely on Twellman to produce when it matters, he said.

In the 2010 season, Twellman named Truman, all-MIAA after recording two goals and seven assists as a sophomore. She was a part of 13 shots on goal while starting in 18 games and playing 1155 minutes. Twellman also was named to the all-MIAA second team.

“She stepped up and filled the spot we needed her to and she’s been doing it ever since,” senior midfielder Heather Niebling said.

Twellman proved herself as a leader on and off the field. She is definitely topped all my coaches,” senior midfielder Melissa Abell said.

Twellman said the people in the soccer program are a big part of her success during past seasons, although Twellman has had success during past seasons, she is not a perfect player. She will be one of the first to admit to mistakes. “I make a bad pass or take a bad shot but I think I can do better and that inspires me to improve.”

Twellman’s determination, fire, positive attitude, confidence and love for the game are all factors that make her the playmaker and leader she is. “She goes out for every ball all the time,” Niebling said. "She loves soccer and you can tell by the way she plays, she’s a great player.”

Although Twellman has had success during past seasons, she is not a perfect player. She will be one of the first to admit to mistakes. “I make a bad pass or take a bad shot but I think I can do better and that inspires me to improve.”

Twellman said the people in the soccer program are a big part of her success during past seasons, although Twellman has had success during past seasons, she is not a perfect player. She will be one of the first to admit to mistakes. “I make a bad pass or take a bad shot but I think I can do better and that inspires me to improve.”

Twellman’s determination, fire, positive attitude, confidence and love for the game are all factors that make her the playmaker and leader she is. “She goes out for every ball all the time,” Niebling said. "She loves soccer and you can tell by the way she plays, she’s a great player.”

BY MEREDITH KUSKY
Staff Reporter

The women’s soccer team is 2-4 in the MIAA. That record might have been 0-2 without the help of junior midfielder Kaitlyn Twellman. This past Saturday, Twellman scored the halftime goal against Missouri Southern and again in the 15th minute against Fort Hays State. On Sept. 22, Twellman scored another game-winning goal against Missouri Southern’s State University during overtime.

Twellman is not new to scoring game-winning goals during overtime. During the 2009 season, Twellman made her presence known by scoring three goals and five assists.

Cannon said Twellman has a confidence about her. She knows the moment at which she needs confidence, but does not come off as arrogant, which is important. He also makes the point that Twellman can rely on Twellman to produce when it matters, he said.

In the 2010 season, Twellman named Truman, all-MIAA after recording two goals and seven assists as a sophomore. She was a part of 13 shots on goal while starting in 18 games and playing 1155 minutes. Twellman also was named to the all-MIAA second team.

“She stepped up and filled the spot we needed her to and she’s been doing it ever since,” senior midfielder Heather Niebling said.

Twellman proved herself as a leader on and off the field. She is definitely topped all my coaches,” senior midfielder Melissa Abell said.

Twellman said the people in the soccer program are a big part of her success during past seasons, although Twellman has had success during past seasons, she is not a perfect player. She will be one of the first to admit to mistakes. “I make a bad pass or take a bad shot but I think I can do better and that inspires me to improve.”

Twellman’s determination, fire, positive attitude, confidence and love for the game are all factors that make her the playmaker and leader she is. “She goes out for every ball all the time,” Niebling said. "She loves soccer and you can tell by the way she plays, she’s a great player.”

Although Twellman has had success during past seasons, she is not a perfect player. She will be one of the first to admit to mistakes. “I make a bad pass or take a bad shot but I think I can do better and that inspires me to improve.”

Twellman said the people in the soccer program are a big part of her success during past seasons, although Twellman has had success during past seasons, she is not a perfect player. She will be one of the first to admit to mistakes. “I make a bad pass or take a bad shot but I think I can do better and that inspires me to improve.”

Twellman’s determination, fire, positive attitude, confidence and love for the game are all factors that make her the playmaker and leader she is. “She goes out for every ball all the time,” Niebling said. "She loves soccer and you can tell by the way she plays, she’s a great player.”