Bing Crosby

Blending music with life is not an easy task. "I was a lucky duck," he concludes in his memoir, "Crosby: Strolling Through My Garden." By the end of his life, Crosby was one of the most accomplished and beloved entertainers of his time. His prodigious talent as a singer, actor, and musician made him a household name, and his legacy continues to this day.

Chuck Norris

Chuck Norris is a martial artist and former actor known for his toughness and fighting spirit. His quote, "I don't know what you would do," encapsulates his no-nonsense attitude and commitment to discipline and self-improvement. Norris is also a devout Christian and has been involved in the entertainment industry for several decades, with roles in films such as "Walker, Texas Ranger," "The A-Team," and many others.

The Lyrics

The lyrics are sincere and written from the heart, and with every song I write, I hope they give you a little more of my unique experiences. I’ve been dealing with things at the moment, the jokes are a way I can deal with it. So people can see that I’m just a human being, and people can see me in a different light. That’s how I wrote the lyrics.”

The State

The State is a rock band from Columbia, Mo., formed in 2004 with Joe Brown and Dylan Phelps. The band graduated from Truman in an under and graduate degree in 1999 and in Music of Arts in Education in 2012. The band was asked to turn their life and relationship into fictional jokes.
