Bulls rugby to victory

28-point run sparks Bulls rugby to victory

BY BLAKE TOPPEMYER

The No. 19 Bulldogs fell 22-15 to the Sooners last night when they were swept by No. 6 Oklahoma State in Lincoln. But that didn’t keep them from playing a strong game.

Sexton said the Bulls were aiming from the beginning of the match. The Sooners began with a wide lead in the first set, and the Bulldogs were able to lead 25-19 in the second half.

That all changed in a matter of seconds when junior Dylan Barton scored a try in the second half. It was the third try of the game and followed by six points in the third set.

They tied the score several times, but never came close as they fell 7-22. They did have four errors during the match.

“Not only is that huge for us, but it’s huge for the rest of the Bulls,” Sexton said.

But Truman’s junior Matt Engleman scored a try in the third set, but to no avail.

They had seven errors during the match. The Jennies had an even closer affair as they lost 7-22. The second set was an even closer affair as Truman was 7-21.

Megan Wargo said, “That’s the team’s difficulties out of our system, we’ve forgotten it’s behind us and just moved forward from here on out.”

Hoke said, “The No. 7 Emporia State University and No. 15 University of Nebraska-Omaha in their last weekend will be the Bulldogs’ biggest matches yet. We were able to beat an even better team than what they beat us back in September. We are proud of the girls for that, they were able to beat an even better Nebraska in there.”

The Jennies dominated the game, but the Bulldogs struggled from the beginning. The Jennies had an even closer affair as they lost 22-7.

“We just weren’t in focus throughout the game in Dallas this weekend,” Sexton said.

The No. 7 Emporia State University and No. 15 University of Nebraska-Omaha in their last weekend will be the Bulldogs’ biggest matches yet.

“We just weren’t in focus throughout the game in Dallas this weekend,” Sexton said. "That’s a learning experience. ... Hopefully that’s all out of our system, we’re forgotten, it’s behind us and just moved forward from here on out.”

The No. 24 Pittsburg State University and Missouri Western State University were able to beat the Bulldogs’ final weekend of regular season matches.

“Hopefully that’s all out of our system, we’ve forgotten it’s behind us and just moved forward from here on out,” Sexton said.

“We just weren’t in focus throughout the game in Dallas this weekend,” Sexton said. "That’s a learning experience. ... Hopefully that’s all out of our system, we’re forgotten, it’s behind us and just moved forward from here on out.”

The No. 24 Pittsburg State University and Missouri Western State University were able to beat the Bulldogs’ final weekend of regular season matches.

“Hopefully that’s all out of our system, we’ve forgotten it’s behind us and just moved forward from here on out,” Sexton said.

“We just weren’t in focus throughout the game in Dallas this weekend,” Sexton said. "That’s a learning experience. ... Hopefully that’s all out of our system, we’re forgotten, it’s behind us and just moved forward from here on out.”

The No. 24 Pittsburg State University and Missouri Western State University were able to beat the Bulldogs’ final weekend of regular season matches.

“Hopefully that’s all out of our system, we’ve forgotten it’s behind us and just moved forward from here on out,” Sexton said.

“We just weren’t in focus throughout the game in Dallas this weekend,” Sexton said. "That’s a learning experience. ... Hopefully that’s all out of our system, we’re forgotten, it’s behind us and just moved forward from here on out.”

The No. 24 Pittsburg State University and Missouri Western State University were able to beat the Bulldogs’ final weekend of regular season matches.

“Hopefully that’s all out of our system, we’ve forgotten it’s behind us and just moved forward from here on out,” Sexton said.

“We just weren’t in focus throughout the game in Dallas this weekend,” Sexton said. "That’s a learning experience. ... Hopefully that’s all out of our system, we’re forgotten, it’s behind us and just moved forward from here on out.”

The No. 24 Pittsburg State University and Missouri Western State University were able to beat the Bulldogs’ final weekend of regular season matches.