Homemade review site achieves success

BY ANNA GRACE
Assistant features editor anna.grace@marionstar.com

Recruiting, historical fashion for the campus production of "Little Women" has Glaros, theater professor, in her element.

The show, which is set between 1862 and 1866, is being produced by the Tru- man State Theatre Department. Dominiq Glaros, temporary assistant theatre professor, said making the costumes has presented several challenges.

"There are a lot of different elements to which one has to pay attention while making the costumes," she said. "In addition to the different years and cultures they represent, there is also the need to maintain the historical accuracy of the pieces."

Although the production of the costumes is a challenge, Glaros enjoys the process.

"I love being able to recreate historical fashion for the production," she said. "It is a way to combine my love of history and design."