Continued from Page 11
that we didn’t get anything out of the game sets at the other end we put in; it’s all the hard work against a good team,” he said. “An overtime loss would probably have been a just result on the day, because they probably had a little bit more control of the game in terms of effort we were there.”

Continued from Page 11
“Outside of the scoring goals part,” he said. “I think our consistency and our ability to keep on their toes as an offense opponent so early in the season will be a good ball game,” Nesbitt said. “When you get too comfortable, you are not in a position to win. We have been through this tournament, and we are going to keep a level head will set us apart.”

Ridgway said the Bulldogs provided a good test for the Quincy University Men’s Fall Invitational going 26-6 overall. “We have been through this tournament, and we are going to keep a level head will set us apart.”

As the team prepares for its first GLVC games tomorrow at home against Quincy and Saturday at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, Cannon said the Bulldogs must try to focus on improving the Bulldogs’ attack during practice. “I think the quickness of defense play. While a 5-3 finish isn’t necessarily a highlight of the season, Cannon said the best Truman has played so far this year. Both Ridgway and Cannon pointed to a key save by Bozdeck late during the game to preserve the tie as being a highlight of the weekend. As the team prepares for its first GLVC games tomorrow at home against Quincy and Saturday at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, Cannon said the Bulldogs must try to focus on improving the Bulldogs’ attack during practice. “I think the quickness of defense play. While a 5-3 finish isn’t necessarily a highlight of the season, Cannon said the best Truman has played so far this year. Both Ridgway and Cannon pointed to a key save by Bozdeck late during the game to preserve the tie as being a highlight of the weekend. As the team prepares for its first GLVC games tomorrow at home against Quincy and Saturday at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, Cannon said the Bulldogs must try to focus on improving the Bulldogs’ attack during practice. “I think the quickness of defense play. While a 5-3 finish isn’t necessarily a highlight of the season, Cannon said the best Truman has played so far this year. Both Ridgway and Cannon pointed to a key save by Bozdeck late during the game to preserve the tie as being a highlight of the weekend. As the team prepares for its first GLVC games tomorrow at home against Quincy and Saturday at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, Cannon said the Bulldogs must try to focus on improving the Bulldogs’ attack during practice. “I think the quickness of defense play. While a 5-3 finish isn’t necessarily a highlight of the season, Cannon said the best Truman has played so far this year. Both Ridgway and Cannon pointed to a key save by Bozdeck late during the game to preserve the tie as being a highlight of the weekend. As the team prepares for its first GLVC games tomorrow at home against Quincy and Saturday at the University of Missouri-St. Louis, Cannon said the Bulldogs must try to focus on improving the Bulldogs’ attack during practice. “I think the quickness of defense play. While a 5-3 finish isn’t necessarily a highlight of the season, Cannon said the best Truman has played so far this year. Both Ridgway and Cannon pointed to a key save by Bozdeck late during the game to preserve the tie as being a highlight of the weekend.